

ANTHROPOLOGY
(SOCIAL SCIENCES DIVISION)

ANTH-101 INTRODUCTION TO PHYSICAL ANTHROPOLOGY (3 cr.) The primary focus is on primate and hominid evolution, and the related development of culture. Other topics include introductions to paleontology, taxonomy, genetics, human population biology, and primate ethnology.

ANTH-102 CULTURAL ANTHROPOLOGY (3 cr.) A general introduction to the field of cultural anthropology. The course exposes students to an anthropological perspective on culture and humanity. Cross-cultural comparisons of language, ecology, economy, kinship/family, gender, social stratification, and change comprise the main topics. Theories of culture and methods of studying culture are briefly described.

ANTH-120 WORLD PREHISTORY (3 cr.) This course takes a world-historical approach in discussing the development of humanity and culture over the past 5 million years. Examples are drawn from all continents. Theories of human and cultural development are introduced.

ANTH-170 INTRODUCTION TO NATIVE AMERICAN STUDIES (3 cr.) Issues facing contemporary native people are studied in the context of basic information about American Indian people in the United States. The diversity of Native historical roots and current social settings are discussed. The approach is topical and selective, rather than comprehensive.

ANTH-192 SPECIAL TOPICS IN ANTHROPOLOGY (3 cr.)

ANTH-195 PRACTICUM IN ANTHROPOLOGY (1-12 cr.)

ANTH-205 GLOBAL ISSUES IN CULTURAL PERSPECTIVE (3 cr.) This course helps students to frame local issues in a global perspective by examining the relationship between globalization and cultural change. Globalization is the process of rapid technological, social, and cultural change. These changes have a profound effect on people's world view because they are intertwined with many local issues, such as health, environmental change, and violence.

ANTH-280 CULTURE AND ENVIRONMENT (3 cr.) The adaptation of humans to their environment by means of cultural systems is analyzed. Issues such as human effects on the environment, environmental influences on humanity, change, and "sustainable development" are discussed.
