

LCSC Author Recognition Program

LCSC Author Recognition 2010-11

Lewis Clark State College is happy to announce the continuation of a faculty driven, “Author Recognition” program at Lewis-Clark State College in collaboration with Library Services, the LCSC Research Excellence Journal and Symposium, and Academic Programs.

The goal of the “Author Recognition” program is to provide a forum for faculty, administration, and staff to present their refereed publications each year including books, book chapters, journal articles, conference papers, patents, and media.

An annual, ongoing compilation is available for review from the Library website as well as other website links for faculty, administration, students, and the community to view the creative works of the LC community. Additionally, published works, with permission, will be displayed at the Annual Senior Research Symposium in May.

Please join us in celebrating the second year of this exciting program by submitting your work or the work of a colleague that has been published in the past three years.

If you have questions, please contact Brian Christenson or Lynne Bidwell.

Submissions for LCSC Author Recognition are being accepted online
