From the Editor

For those of you who regularly follow my column, you will know that I’ve been on something of an emotional roller coaster lately. Right now, I am excited.

Since the job fair last week I have arranged two formal interviews, a potential summer job, and filled out a dozen applications. It is my goal to fill out one job application every day until I get a teaching job.

On Thursday I will travel to Forks, WA (yes, that Forks, WA...) to interview for a position at their high school. I am so excited. I really hope I get it! It is a little bit scary to think about moving to a whole new town, far away from family and friends, but I am ready for a new adventure.

I’m ready to change things up!

I hope the rest of you are having as good of a week as I am, because frankly, it is awesome!

The fair is more than elephant ears and carnival rides

By Amanda Hindberg of The Pathfinder

Almost everyone looks forward to the fair, it doesn’t matter where they are from. For some, it’s because of the rides or food, but for me, at least since 2007, it was 4-H and the animals.

Every summer I had a 4-H lamb that I took care of until September, where I would show off my months of hard work at the Latah County Fair. It’s hard to think about what life was like before having sheep, and this year I’ll find out.

I loved every minute of the summer – going out to the barn twice a day to feed my animals, training them, and working with them was something I never got tired of. A lot of people complain about the Latah County Fair not being big enough, or not having the most expensive, fancy rides, but none of that mattered to me.

I was only in 6th grade when I brought my first lamb to the fair, and I continued until my first year of college. But, in addition to the lambs, 4-H has taught me many things. I’ve learned patience, compassion, and time-management skills that I couldn’t have learned without 4-H. Plus, the ribbons in my room and countless numbers of ribbons don’t hurt!

With the Asotin County Fair coming up on Friday, April 24, I am feeling nostalgic and wishing that I was able to show at the fair in September. But, I am still completely expecting to be able to go to the fair back home, and not having classes on Fridays next semester is a huge blessing!

As you go to any fairs or look at the exhibits, appreciate how much hard work the exhibitors have put into their projects. With record books, demonstrations, and other responsibilities to complete before coming to the fair, it is something that requires a lot of hard work and deserves recognition! Enjoy the rides and food too, I always do!

LCSC students take gold in SkillsUSA competitions

Lewis-Clark State College press release

Wyatt Seiler and Chod Evans, students in Lewis-Clark State College’s Technical and Industrial Division, won gold medals in the SkillsUSA Idaho Leadership & Skills Conference last week. Both will represent the state of Idaho at the national competition in Louisville, Ky., in June.

Seiler, who is from Lewiston, took first in the CNC Turning competition, hosted in Boise, Idaho, out of large field of students from schools throughout the nation.

“Mark (Smith) is a great instructor and he’s taught me and prepared me very well, so I’m pretty confident that when I go I’ll have a good chance to at least place,” Evans said about his prospects at nationals. “At LCSC they don’t just teach you the skills you need to know, they also teach how to be in a trade - what type of mindset and attitude you should have.”

Four other Lewis-Clark State students took home awards as Braden Erickson placed second in Automotive Refinishing, Jesse Teal was second in Collision Repair Technology, Matthew Munch was third in HVAC, and Gary Bolt was third in Information Technology Services.

“This kind of competition is wonderful,” LCSC Technical and Industrial Division Professor Rob McDonald said. “The students come in and try a competition like this and they realize, ‘I do know some things, but there are some holes that I need to fill as well.’ I think it really builds them up to see what everybody else in the state looks like too.”

Warriors move up in national baseball poll

Lewis-Clark State College press release

After notching a series sweep last weekend, Lewis-Clark State moved up one spot, to No. 18, when the NAIA’s baseball coaches released their Top 25 on Tuesday.

The Warriors received 275 points from voters, 35 more than last week when they were ranked 19th. They are coming off a 4-1 week, highlighted by four-game sweep of Corban, that improved their record to 31-10 overall and 16-4 in the NAIA West.

LCSC currently leads the NAIA West standings by a game over second-place British Columbia. The Warriors are the only team from the grouping to appear in the poll, but the Thunderbirds sit just four slots outside the Top 25 after garnering 46 votes.

Faulkner, which won the 2013 Avista-NAIA World Series, topped the rankings for the third consecutive week after earning 18 of 21 first-place votes and 589 points overall. Second-ranked Davenport (Mich.) received two first-place votes while No. 3 Northwood (Fla.) pocketed the first other first-place nod.

Teams that qualified for the 2014 World Series comprised half of the top 10. In addition to Faulkner, Georgia Gwinnett, Oklahoma Baptist and Oklahoma Wesleyan were ranked 6th, 7th and 8th, respectively, while Tabor landed at No. 10.

‘Imagine Your STEM Future’ is May 2 at LCSC

Lewis-Clark State College press release

An “Imagine Your STEM Future Conference for Girls” will be held on Saturday, May 2, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on the campus of Lewis-Clark State College.

The event introduces girls to STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering, and Math) role models through workshops featuring engaging hands-on activities designed to motivate girls to be innovative and creative thinkers. It is presented by LCSC’s Center for New Directions and the Girls Scouts of Eastern Washington and Northern Idaho.

LCSC Associate Professor Heather Henson-Ramsey, chair of the Natural Sciences and Mathematics Division, will serve as the guest speaker for the event, which is funded by the Idaho Division of Professional Technical Education.

The conference is open to all girls grades K-12 for a fee of $10. Those who register on or before April 22 receive a discounted price of $5, and all registrants receive lunch and “SWAG bags.”

For more information or to register, contact Sarah Betts at 800-827-9478, ext. 225, or sbetts@gsewni.org.
Comedian Ronny Jordan brings laughs to LCSC

By Amanda Hindberg of The Pathfinder

It was a full house as comedian Ronny Jordan performed in the newly-renovated Silverthorne Theatre on the LCSC campus. LCSC was one of his last stops during his ‘Kampus Royalty’ tour.

As he walked on stage, dancing to ‘Uptown Funk’, Jordan jumped right into talking about college, roommates, Idaho, among many other things. “If you don’t know about Lewis and Clark and you go to this school, you might as well leave right now!” Jordan said. He also talked about typical roommate situations between men and women.

From Atlanta, Georgia, Jordan took note of the differences between his home state of Georgia and Idaho. He also took note of the clothing of some audience members, unaware of the Hillbilly Olympics that took place shortly before.

Jordan asked how many in the audience had attended public school by a show of hands. “If you’ve gone to public school, we’re all the same. We all had to deal with the same things, we’re all the same,” he said.

Jordan’s current comedy tour, Kampus Royalty, has a special meaning behind it. “If you make it to college, it’s awesome, you’re royalty, so that’s why I call it the Kampus Royalty Tour,” Jordan said.

Jordan sells T-shirts and other merchandise for his tour, so head over to ronniejordan.net to take a look at those. He also has an Instagram account, @ronniejordan, that you can follow. “I will follow anyone back,” Jordan said.

Senate Summary
Meeting held April 14, 2015

By Amanda Hindberg of The Pathfinder

The Hillbilly Olympics were held outside on Wednesday, April 15. Dinner was also served outside at 5:30 p.m. on Wednesday.

Comedian Ronnie Jordan performed at 8 p.m. on Wednesday, April 15 in the Silverthorne Theatre.

• Voting for the 2015-2016 ASLCSC Student Government elections were held on Wednesday, April 15 and Thursday, April 16. Students could vote at polls on campus or individually on WarriorWeb.

Art Under the Elms will be held on April 24-26 on the LCSC campus. The three-day art festival will feature hundreds of artists, entertainment, and fun activities.

• The spending of up to $300 to pay for the First Annual Dog Day Stress Relief Event passed. This will be a donation to the Lewis-Clark Animal Shelter for toys, water bowls, or other items needed throughout the day. These items will be donated to the shelter after the event.

The round-trippers started with back-to-back blasts by Pongs and Kolk in the third. This feat was quickly overshadowed though when Pongs, Kolk and Cabe Reiten homered consecutively to mark just the sixth back-to-back-to-back homers in Warrior history. Ironically, Max Whit, Seth Brown and Michael Sexton did it earlier this year as well.

It’s the fourth time LC State has hit seven home runs in a game since defeating California Baptist 22-8 in 2007.

The two teams square off in another doubleheader starting at 11 a.m. on Sunday. Live coverage is available on 950AM-KOZE or online at www.koze-sports.com.

Bombbs away for Warriors in Redding; records abound

Lewis-Clark State College Press Release

The Lewis-Clark State College baseball team exploded for nine home runs to pummel Simpson University 22-1 and 11-0 in an NAIA West doubleheader on Saturday.

Seniors Cameron Pongs and Darren Kolk had two home runs apiece in game one and were part of a rare back-to-back-to-back home run binge.

With the lopsided wins the 18th-ranked Warriors improve to 34-10 and 18-4 in league play. They’ve won seven straight, outscoring their opponents 52-5 in the last three games.

The opener on Saturday ended in the seventh on the mercy rule, and it’s a good thing it did or there might not have been enough baseballs left for game two.

The round-trippers started with back-to-back blasts by Pongs and Kolk in the third. This feat was quickly overshadowed though when Pongs, Kolk and Cabe Reiten homered consecutively to mark just the sixth back-to-back-to-back homers in Warrior history. Ironically, Max Whit, Seth Brown and Michael Sexton did it earlier this year as well.

It’s the fourth time LC State has hit seven home runs in a game and first since May 1, 2002, against Central Washington. The single-game record is nine, set in 1983.

The Warriors ended up with 21 RBIs, Reiten had three hits, and five others added two hits apiece.

Game two had much the same theme, but in a smaller dosage. The Warriors cracked 11 hits and two home runs, plating four runs in the fourth and four in the ninth.

Brown led with two hits, a double and a home run, and four RBIs, and now leads the nation with 19 home runs on the year. Allen added a home run as well. Both long balls came in the ninth inning.

To make matters worse for Simpson (13-33, 2-20), Warrior starters Ty Jackson and Beau Kerns both tossed gems. Jackson allowed just four hits and a run and struck out six in a seven-inning, complete-game effort in game one. Kerns struck out 10 and gave up just two hits in eight innings of work in game two.

Volunteer opportunities available at Saint Vincent de Paul

Staff Report

Are you the type to volunteer or maybe just looking to get some donations out to a good cause?

Saint Vincent de Paul is hosting a rummage sale in Clarkston, WA to help raise funds for their Christmas Connection program. They are looking for volunteers to help with the sale and donations both.

Saint Vincent de Paul discovered they were roughly $45,000 short in being able to make this year’s Christmas Connection program possible, but they are determined to overcome that.

The rummage sale will be held on April the 24th and the 25th from 8 am to 4 pm at Saint Vincent de Paul Social Services at 604 2nd Street, Clarkston WA. All proceeds and donations will go straight to the Christmas Connection program.

Donations can be mailed to: Saint Vincent de Paul Social Services, 604 2nd Street, Clarkston WA. 99403.

For more information on the subject please call Betty or Sharon at 509-758-7061.

Warriors collect six more homors, two more wins

Lewis-Clark State College
Press Release

A day after hitting nine home runs, the Lewis-Clark State baseball team clubbed six more. And that was more than enough to power LCSC to two more resounding wins.

The 18th-ranked Warriors routed NAIA West foe Simpson University in Sunday’s doubleheader, winning by scores of 15-2 and 12-1. Both games ended after the seventh inning due to the mercy rule.

LCSC claimed all four contests in the series, outscoring the Red Hawks 60-4. The Warriors finished their 10-game road trip with nine consecutive victories, winning the final five games during that span by a composite score of 80-8, to improve their record to 36-10 overall and 20-4 in the NAIA West.

The Warriors lead all of college baseball, not just the NAIA, with 78 home runs. And four of those homers came during the opener. Sophomore Michael Sexton led the barrage, mashing two out-of-the-park blasts and finishing with a career high five RBIs in the first game.

Max Whitt was productive in both games, finishing the doubleheader with two home runs, including a grand slam, and nine RBIs. Whitt cracked his first homer, a three-run shot, in the third inning of the opener. The junior infielder’s 11th dinger of the season gave the Warriors an early 4-0 lead.

After the Red Hawks scored on an LCSC error in the home half of the fourth, the Warriors responded with an eight-run burst in the top of the fifth. They sent 11 batters to the plate and collected six hits.

Whitt plated two more scores during the onslaught with a double before Sexton hit a two-run homer to right field. Raymond Pedrina later stroked a two-out, two-run triple to give the Warriors a 10-1 advantage.

Seth Brown closed out the fifth-inning salvo with his NAIA-leading 20th home run, a two-run shot to right. With that home run, the junior slugger tied Tory Haven and Doug Blume for the seventh-most homers in a season in LCSC history.

The Warriors added three more runs in the sixth when Sexton drilled his second homer of the game, and seventh of the season, to create the final margin. Sexton finished 2-for-4 at the plate while Chadwick Ka’alekahi had three of the Warriors’ 15 hits.

Nick Sagendorf started for the Warriors and improved to 4-1 on the mound after scattering five hits over five innings. The junior right-hander struck out six batters and issued just two walks before giving way to Dakota Cortese, who tossed two innings of scoreless relief.

In Game 2, the Warriors wasted little time padding their home-run tally. Ty Jackson bashed a three-run homer, his seventh of the year, in the top of the first to stake LCSC to a quick lead.

Book Review
“The Shell Collector”

By Samantha White
of The Pathfinder

Anthony Doerr’s collection of short stories “The Shell Collector” unfolds like a well-crafted short story with a plot that keeps the reader engaged from the beginning to the end. The short stories are told in a narrative style that is both descriptive and evocative, with a focus on character development and a sense of place.

Each piece has its own something down, be nobody” (73).

Another story, “The Hunter’s Wife,” tells the audience about a couple who are not certain of their places in life just yet. On their relationship, Doerr writes, “Both of them lived in the grips of forces they had no control over—the November wind, the revolutions of the earth” (55).

Doerr gives his readers tales that demand attention. As each story unravels, page by page, the characters fall face-first into their lives. The audience is dragged along with them. Like a breakup, the stories are difficult to let go. The audience is left to themselves as each piece ties itself shut and asks to be let alone, for now.

Above are just two samples of the eight stories in the collection. Each piece has its own something that makes reading them seem film-like. Because the book is very image-oriented and not a novel, this is ideal for those who cannot commit to reading an entire book in addition to classes, work, etcetera. And for those who do read on the daily, this is less of a book as it is an experience. The book can be found at Lewis-Clark State College’s own bookstore.

scratched out a run in the bottom of the second, the Warriors, much like they did in the opener, furnished another substantial reply. This time, they generated nine runs in the third inning on five hits and a Simpson error.

Willie Allen ignited LCSC’s outburst with an RBI double before Robert Smith Jr. and Pedrina each smacked run-scoring singles. Jackson then collected another RBI, his fourth of the day, allowing just one hit to go with four strikeouts and a walk.

LCSC pitchers, in fact, held Simpson without a hit during the final four innings of the second game. Seven Warrior hurlers also combined for 14 total strikeouts in the doubleheader.

After spending the last two weeks on the road, the Warriors finally get to return to Harris Field for an NAIA West series with British Columbia. That four-game tilt, which will likely decide the champion of the grouping, starts Friday with a 3 p.m. doubleheader.

The LCSC Jazz Band under the direction of Joel Pals and Shawn Bowman will be performing at Art Under the Elms in the SUB amphitheater at LCSC at 10 a.m. on April the 25th. Music will include works by Duke Ellington, Gordon Goodwin, Richard Rogers, Jimmy Van Heusen and Dizzy Gillespie.

They will perform again on Monday April 27th in the Clarkston High School Auditorium at 7:00 p.m. The concert is free and open to the public.

The LCSC Choir under the direction of Joel Pals will present a concert on Monday, May 4 at the First United Methodist Church, 1906 Broadview Dr. in Lewiston at 7:00 p.m. The choir will be performing works by Robert Schumann, Duke Ellington, Dan Bukvich and Phil Collins. The concert is free and open to the public.

Warrior golf teams lead Frontier regular season finale

Lewis-Clark State College press release

With Frontier Conference regular season titles on the line, the Lewis-Clark State College men’s and women’s golf teams are holding leads after day one of the final league tournament at Talons Cove Golf Course on Monday.

The Warrior men, who entered the tournament ahead in the league standings by eight strokes, greatly improved their chances of claiming the conference crown by outpacing Westminster by nine strokes on the day. The Warriors shot a two-round total of 573 (292-281), Westminster came in at 582 (290-292), while Rocky Mountain shot 600 (299-301).

“This is the first time that I’ve had my four top players all under par in the second round,” LCSC head coach Paul Thompson said. “We started out with 292 (in the first round). We were going really well in the first part of that round, but everybody just kind of slipped except for Cole Lorenzo.”

Lorenzo shot a pair of 69s (138) to lead the field of 49 with a score of six-under-par. His teammates weren’t far behind though as they rallied in the second round to catapult LC to a lead. Tanner Priest is three-under at 141 (71-70) and is second in the individual standings, Chris Lien shot a 147 (76-71), James Walkinshaw shot a 147 (76-71), and fifth-player Kurt Simmons finished the day at 156 (79-77).

“The second round we just caught fire,” said Thompson, who commented that the team’s lead would have been even larger had three of his players not bogeyed the final hole. “It was great weather, and I’ve always known that these guys could go deep, but today we were finally able to make some puts.”

The Warrior women entered the tournament 27 strokes back of Westminster and with seemingly little hope of competing for the title. All that change on Monday though as LCSC trimmed 17 strokes off of the Griffins’ lead and is now just 10 strokes away from winning it all.

Led by a second-place score of 76 from Karina Davila, the Warriors shot a one-round total of 320. Rocky Mountain was propelled by leader Kyla Clancy (75) and came in at 332, while Westminster shot a 337 in its home event.

“We’ve got a shot,” Thompson said of winning the league title. “The women didn’t play great, but they played pretty steady.”

Holly Hodges came in behind Davila with a fifth-place total of 80, Kayla Monroe shot an 81, Allison Kadinger an 83, and Brianna Hadler an 85.

The men’s and women’s tournaments wrap up on Tuesday with one more round of play. The LCSC women are seeking their fourth regular season title and first since 2013, while the men are going for their ninth championship and first since 2013. Both teams finished second last year to Rocky Mountain.
This week’s Professor Profile introduces an instructor in Industrial Electronics Technology, Henrik (Rik) Brosten. Rik has taught Electronic Technology for 12 years at LCSC. He is an instructor who has a wide understanding both in teaching and exclusive working experience. Before he started his career as a professor, he worked at a company as an Instrument Technician for 30 years.

He majored mathematics in college, and he also received his Master’s in education. After he retired, he decided to teach and transfer his working experience and knowhow to next generation. Even though Brosten worked at the company for 30 years, he is not a strict person like a company boss.

“My biggest pleasure as an instructor is to see student’s improvement. I am always really happy when I hear that my students got hired by a big company with better payment than I received.” He says.

He is also like a “foster dad” for international students. 30 of LCSC’s international students, coming from many different countries, have been or currently are living at his home for homestay. He has opened his house for the international students since he moved in Lewiston.

Because of this, he usually spends a weekend with the international students in his house to teach them how to drive, English, helping them adapt to new culture. 18 international students have got their driver’s license through his instruction.

Brosten said, “I love to get to know and experience other cultures. I am really proud of my international students when they graduate from LCSC. They need to spend more effort and energy than native students to adopt other culture and language for their degree, and I am so happy to have a chance to help them out.”

He will teach Embedded Systems, PLC, and motors in coming fall semester. If anyone has interested in electronic engineering, Brosten would be “Big Daddy” of one’s academic success.
Pedrina clubs two homers in Warrior rout

Lewis-Clark State College press release

Raymond Pedrina hit two home runs, including a grand slam, to lead the 18th-ranked Lewis-Clark State baseball team to a 20-4 triumph over William Jessup on Thursday night.

Seth Brown, the top long-ball hitter in the country, and Chadwick Ka’alekahi also homered for the Warriors, who finished with a season-high 23 hits. This was also the 87th time since 1979 that LCSC scored at least 20 runs in a game.

LCSC has now won five straight games, and seven of its last eight, to improve to 32-10 overall. William Jessup, fielding a baseball program for the first time in its history, falls to 7-33 in its inaugural season.

The Warriors did the majority of their damage in the first three innings, exploding for 14 runs during that span. They broke open a 1-1 deadlock with a nine-run detonation in the top of the second, when they sent 14 batters to the plate and collected seven hits.

After the first three LCSC batters reached base to start the second, Cabe Reiten and Max Whitt produced back-to-back RBI singles. Brown then followed with a sacrifice fly to center to put the Warriors up 4-1.

The very next batter, Ty Jackson, stroked a two-run double. Jackson, the reigning NAIA West Player of the Week, also platted the Warriors’ first run of the game with a single to center.

Three batters later, Ka’alekahi, who started the inning with a double, walked to load the bases again for the Warriors. Then, with two outs, Pedrina hit a ball off the top of the wall in right-center field. Pedrina hustled around to third for what he thought was a bases-clearing triple. But following a short conference by the umpires, the sophomore was awarded a grand slam.

It was the third grand slam of Pedrina’s short LCSC career, and his second in the last four games. It also gave the Warriors a 10-1 advantage after just two innings.

The Warriors produced some more fireworks in the third, which began with Brown hitting his NAIA-leading 18th home run. Ka’alekahi followed with his first home run as a Warrior, a two-run blast that put LCSC on top 13-1.

Pedrina then capped the salvo with his second home run of the game, a solo shot that bumped his total to five homers on the season. Four of those have come in the Warriors’ last four outings. Pedrina also slugged a grand slam and a solo homer in a game against Corban last weekend.

The home-run barrage in the third marked the second time this season that the Warriors hit three out-of-the-park blasts in a single inning. They have clubbed 63 home runs this year, 13 more than any other club in the NAIA. In fact, at the moment, no team at any level of collegiate baseball has mashed more home runs than the Warriors.

Twelve Warriors tallied a hit Thursday night, with nine of them collecting two or more. Pedrina and Darren Kolk led the way with three base knocks while Jackson and Cameron Pongs each drove in three runs.

While LCSC battered William Jessup’s pitching staff, Quin Grogan stifled the California school’s offense. The junior right-hander drew the start for the Warriors and allowed just one run on three hits and a walk in his five innings on the mound.

Grogan stifled the California school’s offense. The junior right-hander drew the start for the Warriors and allowed just one run on three hits and a walk in his five innings on the mound. He also recorded a season-high eight strikeouts while improving to 2-2 on the season.

Kasey Chapan, making just his third appearance of the season and first since Feb. 11, pitched an inning for the Warriors while J.T. Kaul tossed the final three frames, recording three strikeouts.

The Warriors are now more than halfway through a daunting 10-game road. All that remains is a four-game NAIA West series with Simpson University.

Warriors complete sweep of Corban with rally

press release

It required some extra work — 10 innings to be exact — but the 19th-ranked Lewis-Clark State baseball team rallied from a late four-run deficit to defeat Corban University 10-7 during the second game of a doubleheader Sunday.

The Warriors also scratched out a 4-3 triumph in the opener that proved just as costly. Increasing the students really care. This will make a sand volleyball field on the campus, and the students may realize that this is one of the ASLCSC’s achievements. With those small things, the students might realize why they need to vote for their representatives. “If anyone is interested in becoming a member of ASLCSC, please feel free to knock on their door. ASLCSC is still looking for more students who want to be involved.

ASLCSC holds election for 2015-2016 school year

by Jin Choi
of The Pathfinder

“I heard that I am the winner of the election on Friday afternoon. I am so excited. I will try to find and listen to students’ dissatisfaction on campus and help them to resolve it.” said Ryan Rehberg, who is the winner of 2015 LCSC Presidential election.

The 2015 Associated Students of Lewis-Clark State College (ASLCSC) election was held April 15th and 16th. The LC students exercised their valuable right to vote in the election for their future representatives.

Ten candidates were selected by the students for 2015 and 2016 academic semesters. Results of the election were posted for public on Friday afternoon by ASLCSC. About 320 students participated in voting. However, ASLCSC hopes to increase the voting rate in the future, as about 3,000 students currently attend LCSC.

Moreover, this was the highest voting rate in two years.

Rehberg said, “A problem came up during the forum. Most of our candidate said that we should advertise more about the voting, but I don’t really think more advertisement is the solution to resolve this problem. I think the ASLCSC needs to involve that the students really care. This will ultimately snowball. Increasing voting rate can’t be done with one individual thing. It is going to be combined tons of small things. For example, we have a plan to make a sand volleyball field on the campus, and the students may realize that this is one of the ASLCSC’s achievements. With those small things, the students might realize why they need to vote for their representatives.”

Lorenzo leads LCSC men to Frontier championship

Lewis-Clark State College press release

Three golfers, including medalist Cole Lorenzo, finished in the top 10 during the season’s final Frontier Conference tournament to lead the Lewis-Clark State men to the event championship as well as the conference’s regular-season title Tuesday.

The Warrior women also won the team championship at the tournament, hosted by Westminster and held at TalonsCove Golf Course, but missed the Frontier crown by just three strokes.

Despite battling strong winds that reached 50 miles per hour at times, Lorenzo was the only golfer to finish under par at the two-day, three-round tournament. After posting a pair of 69s on Monday, the junior fired a 73 in the final round to finish with a 5-under 211. That bested the rest of the field by at least eight strokes.

“In the middle of the final round, he was 2-under,” LCSC coach Paul Thompson said. “But the wind just got to him — and it got to everybody. I talked to him after and he said he was more proud of the 73 than he was of the two 69s. It was such a hard wind that you had to take that into consideration on every shot.”

Fellow LCSC junior Chris Lien recorded a 7-over 223 to place sixth while sophomore James Walkinshaw posted an 8-over 224 to finish eighth. The Warriors’ final scorer, Kurt Simmons, tied for 18th with a 236.

Those efforts helped LCSC post an 879 at the tournament, which was 10 shots better than second-place Westminster. The Warriors also finished 21 strokes ahead of the Griffins in the Frontier Conference standings to claim their 10th FC championship overall and first since 2013.

Among the LCSC women, Karina Davila furnished the best 36-hole score for the Warriors. The junior followed up her Monday 76 with an 81 for a 13-over 157, leaving her tied for second in the individual standings. She finished just one stroke behind medalist Kyla Clancy of Rocky Mountain.

LCSC freshman Allison Kadinger placed seventh after firing a 162, which included a 79 in the final round, while Brianna Hadler placed eighth with a 165. Holly Hodges also produced a top-10 effort, placing ninth with a 167, while Kayla Monroe tied for 10th with a 171.

The Warrior women tallied a team score of 647, outshooting Westminster by 24 strokes for the team title at the tournament. But the Griffins still claimed the Frontier regular-season championship, edging the Warriors by just three shots.

The regular-season championship is determined by adding each team’s scores from the three conference tournaments, two of which took place last fall. The conference’s automatic qualifier for nationals, however, is given to the school that wins the Frontier Conference Championships, which takes place in Phoenix at the end of the month.

“I think we have a good chance of winning both,” Thompson said. “In reality, that’s what we just did against the field. I’ve maintained all along that I felt that we were a really good ballstriking team, but we were struggling on the short game. That is something that we’ve worked hard on, and it seems to have paid off.”

Spring Basketball Preview

By Taylor Marshall of The Pathfinder

The NBA playoffs are under way. After a somewhat surprising regular season in which we saw the Golden State Warriors and Atlanta Hawks grab the top seeds in the playoffs we are ready for the run to the NBA Finals. At last the time of year when the best players on the planet actually give one hundred percent effort for the entirety of the game, because these games actually matter.

In the past two or three seasons we have seen the San Antonio Spurs and Miami Heat battle it out in the Finals but this year looks to be different.

The Spurs are no longer the top dog in the Western Conference anymore with the rise of the Warriors. James Harden’s Houston Rockets and the L.A. Clippers led by veteran point Chris Paul and high flying superstar Blake Griffin also look poised to make some noise as they play San Antonio in the first round.

Portland led by Damian Lillard and LaMarcus Aldridge are a big sleeper in the west as well and could very easily make a deep run. There’s no doubt that the Western Conference is a wide open race and there is really no telling who will come out of it to play in the Finals.

If I had to make a prediction I would say that the Warriors and there soon to be MVP Steph Curry will continue to play well and move on to play whomever comes out of the East. Not to mention Klay Thompson the Warriors two guard played at Washington State University so I’m a little impartial towards the Warriors.

On the other side of the bracket things are more cut and dry. It’s LeBron James and his Cleveland Cavaliers and whoever ends up playing them in the Eastern Conference Finals. The Cavs are loaded and playing great. They boast the best player in the league (LeBron James) as well as one of the best scorers in the league (Kyrie Irving) along with the most versatile big man in the game (Kevin Love).

As far as teams that could knock of the Cavs it comes down to Chicago and Atlanta. The Hawks (Atlanta) play tough defense, pass the ball and shoot at a very high percentage. Chicago put simply has the most depth of any roster in the NBA and with Derrick Rose back and healthy look to make a nice run towards the Finals. The only problem for Chicago is that if they win their first round series their next opponent will be the Cavs.

When it’s all said and done I see Cleveland and Atlanta playing in the Eastern Conference Finals and I have to pick the Cavs to win it and move on to play the Warriors in the Finals. From there it’s anyone’s guess who wins and we will have to tune in and watch what happens.
LCSC baseball alters schedule for Hall of Fame ceremony

Lewis-Clark State College press release

In order to avoid conflicting with the 2015 Lewis-Clark State College Athletic Hall of Fame ceremony, the Warrior baseball team has altered the schedule for its upcoming four-game NAIA West series with British Columbia.

The new baseball slate includes a doubleheader on Friday, April 24, beginning at 3 p.m. The teams will then play a single game on Saturday, April 25, at 1 p.m. before concluding the series with a game Sunday, April 26, at 11 a.m.

The Warriors, who are 31-10 overall and ranked No. 18, currently hold a one-game lead over British Columbia in the NAIA West standings. The tilt with the Thunderbirds will be the Warriors’ final home series of the season.

The LCSC Hall of Fame ceremony takes place Saturday, April 25, at the Lewiston Elks Lodge. A social starts at 5 p.m. with dinner and the induction ceremony to follow at 6:30 p.m.

The honorees include the 1987 baseball team and the 2000-01 women’s basketball squad, along with former women’s basketball standout Julie Stringer and former Warrior Major Leaguers Marvin Benard, Steve Decker, Steve Reed and Keith Foulke.

Tickets for the ceremony, which is presented by the Warrior Athletic Association, cost $40. They can be purchased by calling the LCSC athletic department at 208-792-2275.

LCSC track posts more qualifying marks at Twilight Invite

Lewis-Clark State College press release

Three members of the Lewis-Clark State track and field team — Kea Paton, Sophie Bush and Dylan Crevelt — posted national qualifying marks during the Whitworth Twilight Invitational on Thursday.

The Warrior men’s 3,200-meter relay team also qualified for the NAIA Outdoor National Championships during the meet, which took place at the Pine Bowl.

Paton, a sophomore from Cashmere, Wash., got things rolling for the Warriors in one of the day’s first events, the women’s 3,000-meter steeplechase. Paton clocked a time of 11 minutes, 22.92 seconds, reaching the automatic qualifying standard for the national meet.

It was Bush, though, who perhaps put on the best show. The junior took first in the women’s 1,500 meters, setting a course and school record with a time of 4:34.79. She finished more than 28 seconds ahead of the next finisher, fellow Warrior Nicole Dillavou.

The Warriors also dominated the men’s 5,000 meters, grabbing the top seven places. Crevelt, a sophomore from Cascade, Idaho, led the charge, placing first at 14:55.80. He narrowly edged LCSC freshman Nolan Ryan, who took second at 14:56.10.

A quartet of Warriors — Nehemiah Barrett, Steven Broadhurst, Joey Davis and Tomislav Smith — qualified for nationals as a collective in the 3,200 relay. Even though they were the only team in the event, the Warriors managed to push themselves hard enough to record a time of 7:47.12.

Broadhurst also bagged a first-place result in the men’s 800 meters, finishing with a time of 1:56.20. Other Warrior winners on the track included Katie Strong, who ran 18:50.29 in the women’s 5,000 meters, Miranda Hendren, the top finisher in the women’s 100-meter hurdles at 16.92, and Joel Boozer, who notched the top time in the men’s 110-meter hurdles at 15.96 seconds.

LCSC also registered a win in a field event when Kurtis Bonner placed first in the men’s high jump. The freshman cleared a mark of 6 feet, 2.75 inches.

The Warriors return to action April 24 when they travel to Hermiston, Ore., to compete in the Eastern Oregon University Invitational.

LCSC women jump five spots in rankings; men remain No. 20

Lewis-Clark State College press release

Following wins in three of their last four matches, the Lewis-Clark State women moved up five spots, to No. 16, while the LCSC men stayed at No. 20 when the NAIA’s tennis coaches released the Top 25 on Tuesday.

The Warrior women, ranked 21st two weeks ago, received 195 points from voters. Since the last poll, the Warriors have defeated two ranked NAIA teams and Whitworth University, an NCAA Division III school, to improve to their record to 6-12.

The LC State men didn’t budge from their position in the previous poll after receiving 109 points, a difference of only 11 points from two weeks ago. The Warriors are 3-9 this season.

Georgia Gwinnett, the defending national champion for both the men and women, sat atop Tuesday’s polls. The Grizzly women, who are 7-6, earned all but two of 14 first-place nods.

What would you like to see from the future ASLCSC senate?

Jun Ogawa
Major: Computer Science
Year: Freshman
“I hope in the near future, there would be more interaction from the ASLCSC to a diverse range of students.”

Audrey Smalldridge
Major: Pre-Nursing
Year: Freshman
“I would like to see the ASLCSC use its influence to get language classes on campus and to reach more students.”

Jared Nau
Major: Sports administration
Year: Senior
“I think that there could be better advertising for sporting events and other recreation events that are going on campus and more of a connection between the students and their student government.”

Charli Wenzel
Major: Elementary Education
