Course Description:

Students develop a sociological frame of reference for understanding some of the complex problems of our society. Problems examined include poverty, environmental degradation, racism, sexism, crime, substance abuse, inadequate healthcare, etc. in the context of American society.

Purpose:

This course is designed to help students become critical consumers of information concerning the causes, consequences, and solutions related to current social problems.

General Education Learning Outcomes:

This course is designed to help you develop the competencies stipulated by the Idaho State Board of Education for the Social and Behavioral Ways of Knowing component of the General Education Core. Upon successful completion of this course, you will be able to do the following:

1. Demonstrate knowledge of the theoretical and conceptual frameworks of a particular Social Science discipline (sociology).
2. Develop an understanding of self and the world by examining the dynamic interaction of individuals, groups, and societies as they shape and are shaped by history, culture, institutions, and ideas.
3. Utilize Social Science approaches, such as research methods, inquiry, or problem solving, to examine the variety of perspectives about human experiences.
4. Evaluate how reasoning, history, or culture informs and guides individual, civic, or global decisions.
5. Understand and appreciate similarities and differences among and between individuals, cultures, or societies across space and time.

Course-specific Learning Outcomes:

This course aims to help you gain knowledge and develop skills that will aid you in becoming a critical thinker, a successful student, and an informed, engaged member of society. More specifically, in this course you will do the following, which are linked to the above General Education learning outcomes as noted in parentheses:

- learn how to interpret your and others' behaviors and experiences using a sociological framework (i, ii, iv, v)
- gain an understanding of the structural roots of social problems (i, ii, iv, v)
- gain an understanding of the ways social class, race, gender, and nationality affect people's life chances and the types of problems and challenges they face (i, ii, iv, v)
- discuss social issues in an informed, critical, and civil manner and in the process gain experience speaking to an audience of your peers (i, ii, iii, iv, v)
- write evidence-based essays in which you analyze specific social problems and apply sociological theories, concepts, and insights appropriately (i, ii, iii, iv, v)

Goals:

It is expected that students will become more adept at utilizing social scientific analysis to analyze social problems in a critical manner. The written work and verbal presentations of students should reflect systematic, logical arguments clearly supported by theory and research. Students will have opportunities to practice effectively communicating their social science analysis.

Course Requirements:

Introduction Discussion 10 points
Report One 30 points
Report Two 30 points
Report Three 30 points
Report Four 15 points EXTRA CREDIT
Exam One 100 points
Exam Two 100 points
Exam Three 100 points
Exam Four 100 points

Discussion:

All students are expected to participate in the first introduction discussion (on Canvas) where you will introduce yourself to the class.

Reports:

Three required reports and one extra credit report will be assigned throughout the semester. There will be questions posted on Canvas. Reports will be submitted to Canvas. The questions will be designed to facilitate class discussions. They will include short oral reports prepared in small group discussions on selected issues in the readings (to be assigned in class). The small groups will consist of three or four students each. I will assign group members on the day of discussions. Each group will pick a member to take notes and prepare a short document with the names of the group members and an outline of the group's main points. The document will be uploaded to Canvas at the end of the class and serve as the basis for the group's report grade. I will post questions on our website to be considered approximately one week in advance.

Exams:

Four exams (including the final exam) consisting of essay, multiple-choice, true/false, and fill-in-the-blanks questions will be administered through Canvas. Study questions will be available prior to the exams to help you prepare.

Student Conduct:

The lectures for the class will be conducted via Zoom. Students are expected to have cameras on, mute when not talking, be dressed appropriately for a classroom, and actively participate in class discussions. Cameras need to be on for attendance to count.

Any student with questions remaining as to what constitutes cheating or plagiarism should consult the instructor in order to avoid any misunderstanding. If a student is caught cheating, at minimum, he/she will fail the assignment, the Judicial Affairs Officer will be notified and the incident recorded.

Moreover, we will be dealing with controversial issues at times and it is essential that discussions remain constructive and respectful.
